

KILLED BY BLAST

John Gorda, an Employee of the Federal Killed and Horribly Mangled.

Just before four o'clock last Friday morning, says the Lead Bell News, John Gorda was instantly killed by a blast at the Federal.

Gorda was working for Messrs. Hause, Fawcett and Detichon, contractors miners, and was running a drill plane in the bottom of the shaft when some electrical machinery is to be played. It is said that Mr. Gorda had charged three holes, putting two meters in each. After the third explosion went forward so far now his shots had broken and when mine disaster, on the spot another shot fired, killing him and mangled his body. It is supposed that one of the first explosions jerked a meter from one of the other holes causing an explosion which Mr. Gorda must have had shot.

Gorda was just forty years of age and leaves a wife and one child. He had been mining nine years, five of which had been with the Federal.

The thief entered an entrance at a side window, where a desk and the money drawer was first by breaking a glass out, thinking perhaps he could reach the drawer, but failing in this, he seized the cross piece in the window with a knife, taking part of the window out, and crawled in. He took all the money there was in the drawer, which consisted of nothing but nickels and dimes, amounting to five or ten dollars. The front door was bolted on the inside, and was partly open next morning, showing that the thief went in at the window and out at the door. Mr. Cashion said he found nothing had been disturbed but the money drawer, which was cleaned out. One nickel was found on the floor, which was dropped from the drawer.
